'New Deal' Is Target Of G.O.P. Convention Attacks

Martin Calls For Crusade To Save America

Permanent Chairman Of G. O. P. Convention Assails Roosevelt Policies

DECLARES TREND TO DICTATORSHIP

"New Deal" Is Castigated As Martin Assumes Post As Chairman

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 25.—Flatly accusing President Roosevelt of leading the nation toward dictatorship, Rep. Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts today called on a thousand wildly cheering delegates to the G. O. P. national convention for a "crusade" to check the alleged drift and to preserve fundamental Americanism.

Delivering his attack as he assumed permanent chairmanship of the convention, the New Englander castigated the new deal for harboring "fifth columnists," condemned what he termed a seven-year "nightmare of experimentation and spending," and predicted repudiation of the Roosevelt administration at the polls next November.

In addition, he took a pointed slap at alleged interventionist policies of Mr. Roosevelt and secretary of state Cordell Hull, asserting that "there is much reason to believe we may yet wake up to find we have been pushed into war."

Seven Anxious Years

"For seven anxious years we have seen this march toward one-man government," he cried. "There is a steady drift toward governmental absolutism both at home and abroad. This drift must be checked. It must be checked this year. . .

"Our nation is in danger. Clear and loud above the roar of war abroad and the chaos and confusion at home comes the call to patriotic Americans. It is an appeal and a challenge to all who love America;

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Residents of the Pulaski Road, just outside the city limits, report that an old landmark was destroyed Sunday morning, when a motorist skidded on the highway and ran into an old thorn tree, which has stood on the old Crocker property since before the county was settled. It once served as a surveyor's mark, and the original spike which was driven into it when the property was first surveyed was still imbedded in the trunk, it is stated.

While the city sidewalk "project" for this summer did not materialize, there is little reason why some of the worst sidewalks around the city cannot be fixed.

Only a day or two over a week and the Fourth of July will be here again.

Willkie Is Most Colorful Figure At G. O. P. Sessions

By BART RICHARDS
(News Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 25—Wendell Willkie may not be nominated by the Republicans for the presidency of the United States at this convention, but if he isn't he will go down as the most colorful figure that has risen in a national political convention since a young fellow named William Jennings Bryon electrified the Democratic convention in 1896 with his "Cross of Gold Speech."

This staid old city of Philadelphia has gone overboard for the boss of the company that serves New Castle with electric light Other dark horses of the convention have about folded up like a three dollar accordion. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Frank Gannet of New York, Governor Bricker of Ohio, all of them long shot chances may as well close up and go home. Senator Bridges is now hoping to get enough votes on the convention floor to put him in shape to get the vice presidential nomination. The others haven't anything in sight except the memory of a good time.

Senator Vandenburg's candidacy is suffering, and as the convention prepares to listen to the flood of oratory nominating candidates there are two candidates with a sizeable bloc of votes pledged. Taft and Dewey. Governor James of Pennsylvania will make a good showing on the first ballots and after that it may be Willkie against the field.

Willkie's candidacy seems to be growing. A short time before this was written former State Senator Frank J. Harris, of Pittsburgh declared that Willkie would get 14 of the Pennsylvania 72 votes on "The Royal Air Force yesterday raided the Ruhr area and Holland, and during the daylight hours attacked an oil depot in Germany and directed a series of raids against airdromes in Holland.

"Last night intensive attacks were made in the Ruhr and in northern Germany.

"Both day and night operations were highly successful.

Population Of City Is 47,643

Census Figures For New Castle Are Announced By Officials

With all of its suburban sections registering substantial gains or at least maintaing their 1930 totals, New Castle's own preliminary 1940 population total as announced today by census officials to be 47,643—1,031 under the 48,674 of 1930. The trend here is the same as in other cities of this district.

As in the nation over, residential areas, directly outside the city, probably gained much more than the eight wards within the municipal boundaries lost.

Throughout the country the census has shown that a large population shift from city to suburbs has been in progress during the past decade. The trend in larger cities has been more pronounced and even more surprising. The preliminary figures are accepted as finals unless error is found.

District Supervisor Jacob Venger hurriedly tabulated final population totals for unreported cities towns and townships and boroughs throughout his Lawrence-Beaver-Butler district. At close of this week he expects to close the 26th congressional district census headquarters in the Greer building, North Mercer street.

While a number of Lawrence county governmental sub-divisions have already been reported on, the district office today released 1930 and 1940 figures for 12 additional townships and two additional boroughs.

The two boroughs reported today:

Wampum: 1,066 in 1940, 883 in 1930. Gain.

South New Castle: 998 in 1940, 1,038 in 1930. Loss.

Additional township totals:

Big Beaver	983	1285

Reception Of Hoover Tonight May Decide Possibility As Candidate

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—A mild boom for former President Herbert Hoover today vied with a western revolt against the Wendell Willkie "blitzkrieg" for the spotlight at the second session of the Republican presidential convention.

An unexpected anti-war revolt within the resolutions committee, however, may provide the day's sensation. A group of isolationists, in control of the subcommittee platform writers, already have put new teeth into the anti-war declaration, the denunciation of President Roosevelt's military aid to the Allies, and the attack on Secretary Hull's reciprocal trading program.

The Isolationists won in the subcommittee but must carry their fight through the full resolutions committee. Later, they may have to defend their work on the floor of the convention. But they have succeeded in rewriting a large part of the test platform drafted last week by the pre-convention committee headed by Alf M. Landon.

Hoover Boom Launched

The Hoover boom was launched by Californians and John W. Haigis, of the Massachusetts delegation, on the eve of the former president's appearance as the convention's guest of honor tonight. LONDON, June 25.—Chancellor Hitler lost not a moment in swinging the full might of his military machine against England today, for at the very instant that fighting ceased in continental Europe, Nazi bombers were winging over the British Isles in waves, killing three civilians and injuring 13 others. Later reports said it was feared the death toll may reach five.

It was revealed that a group of royal air force bombers, returning home from a night raid upon German military objectives, almost ran into a large flight of Nazi machines. The British aircraft swung around and turned back toward the sea and reached their base by another route.

One British plane over southeast England heavily damaged by a German bomber, and it was officially stated that it was "unlikely" that the Nazi pilot was able to reach his home base.

BERLIN, June 25.—As a jubilant Germany hailed the victorious conclusion of the war in continental Europe, Chancellor Hitler lost no time today in consolidating his conquest in France in order to throw the full energies of the Reich against England.

The general will head a commission headquarters at Wiesbaden, which will convene as soon as the French name their representatives. This commission will be charged with the task of seeing to it that all conditions of the armistice agreement are adhered to by France.

LONDON, June 25.—Great Britain will continue to fight and still hopes to "rescue France from bondage" Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared in the house of commons today.

The prime minister expressed "profound sorrow" over France's surrender to Germany and Italy, but said he would waste no time in "hard words or reproaches."

"It is to be hoped," he said, "that life and power will be given us to rescue France from the ruin and bondage into which she has been cast by the might and fury of the enemy and by other causes.

"I hope also that the French empire will continue the struggle on the side of the Allies. . . .

Non-Intervention Plank Is Drafted

By GRIFFING BANCROFT, Jr.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—A new non-intervention plank which would forbid any allied aid "inconsistant with requirements of national defense" was written into the tentative Republican platform early today by an isolationist majority on the drafting subcommittee.

Bowing to threats of a fight on the convention floor, the subcommittee approved the following plank on the issue of aid to the allies:

"We favor the extension of aid to all peoples fighting for liberty or whose liberty is threatened, if such aid shall not be in violation of international law or inconsistent with requirements of national defense in this country."

Isolationists Not Satisfied

Even this plank failed to please all the isolationists. C. Wayland Brooks, of the Illinois delegation, was charged with drafting a still stronger anti-war plank for submission to the subcommittee during the day. On instructions from the Illinois delegation, Brooks confronted the sub-committee with a demand that the Republican party take the strongest possible stand against involvement in war.

The allied-aid plank, conditioned on requirements for America's national defense, was substituted for an earlier draft which had been endorsed by another group headed by Alf M. Landon. The earlier draft read merely:

"We favor aid to oppressed peoples within the boundaries of international law."

This declaration, approved by the pre-convention subcommittee on national defense, had been turned over to the new sub-committee for polishing. Instead, the new subcommittee put new teeth into it. Orville Bullington, of Texas, led the fight for revision, aided by Senators Thomas, of Idaho, and Lodge, of Massachusetts.

Battlefields Of France Silent As War Ceases

Armistice In Effect Between France And Italo-German Allies Today

EERIE STILLNESS OVER BATTLEFRONTS

Italo-German Allies To Turn Combined Military Might On Britain

By PERCY WINNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, June 25.—A death-like stillness hung over the blood-drenched battlefields of vanquished France today as all firing ceased in continental Europe and the Italo-German Allies turned to hurl their total, combined military might against Britain.

As stipulated between the fighting powers, the guns of both sides became silent and all troop movements ceased on the dot of 1:35 o'clock this morning (7:35 p. m. EDT Monday), exactly six hours after Rome notified Berlin that France had bowed her head to Premier Mussolini's terms as she already had done to the demands of Chancellor Hitler.

Armistice Signed

The Italo-French armistice was signed at 7:15 p. m. Monday evening (1:15 p. m. EDT) in the quiet Villa Inchesa at Olgiata, a dozen miles from Rome. Twenty minutes later Rome notified Berlin, and in accordance with prior agreement troops of both sides on the battlefront stopped fighting six hours later.

Until the very moment of the 1:35 a. m. "cease firing" orders, the battle continued however, although an official Italian communique said

Keynoter Tears Into New Deal Record

Young Governor Stirs Delegates

Gov. Harold E. Stassen Of Minnesota Delivers G. O. P. Keynote Address

DECLARES NEW DEAL PROGRAM FAILURE

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Delegates to the Republican National Convention returned to convention hall today with the ringing phrases of youthful Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, keynoter of the gathering, still fresh in their memory.

Stassen, 33-year-old executive, received a tremendous ovation as he tore into the New Deal, denouncing it as a "failure" and warning that a change of government "before it is too late" is necessary to the national welfare. In developing this theme, Governor Stassen drew a parallel between the present administration and the pre-war leaders in England and France, both forced from office by the exigencies of national defense.

President Roosevelt's recent summoning of two Republican stalwarts, Henry L. Stimson and Col. Frank Knox, to head, respectively, the war and naval departments was characterized by Stassen as a confession of "failure" in national defense preparations.

Not Pleasant Task

"It is not a pleasant task," he said, "to criticize those in positions of governmental authority. Yet it is absolutely essential to the functioning of democracy.

"It was not easy for the people of England to criticize their pre-war government, yet how essential—in fact, how belated—was their change. It was not easy for the people of France to criticize their pre-war government or their pre-war generals, yet how necessary and how fatally delayed was their change."

Stassen urged "decisive and determined" action to implement the current defense program. He laid blame for the current state of this country's military establishment squarely on the New Deal doorstep, observing that for seven years the administration has enjoyed "strong majorities in both houses of Congress." He emphasized:

"They have had complete authority and they must take full responsibility for what has happened so far as government is concerned during these past seven years."

that the end of the war in continental Europe followed an evening of steadily reduced activity.

At the very moment of termination, it was claimed, Italian troops under Crown Prince Humbert were holding French soil in the Alps beyond Blachere. The Riviera seacoast road also had been taken under difficult conditions, it was stated.

Guns Are Silenced

But the instant the hands of the clock reached the appointed minute, the roaring guns became silent and an eerie stillness blanketed the vast battlelines where a single minute before the bursting of shells and the rat-tat-a-tat of quick-fire guns rent the air.

The French-Italian armistice was signed exactly 48 hours and 25 minutes after the French capitulated to Germany's dictates in the same historic railway car in Compiegne forest where the Allies dictated their armistice terms to Germany in 1918.

General Charles Huntziger, member of France's supreme war council, signed the Italian armistice for his country as he had previously signed the agreement with the Nazis. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian army chief of staff, signed for Fascist Italy.

Twenty minutes after Huntziger and Badoglio had affixed their signatures to the historic document Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano telephoned Berlin formal notification of the French capitulation, and immediately the orders to cease fire early this morning were started out to the commanders on both sides in the battle lines.

While details of the Italian terms were not available, it is evident that Italy, after only fourteen days of participation in the conflict, and at virtually insignificant cost in lives and material, had gained a substantial victory.

bugles over the German radio early today signalized the actual end of the fighting.

Precisely at 1:35 o'clock this morning (7:35 p. m. Reich Celebrates

Throughout the Reich today flags were flown in celebration, and church bells pealed out victoriously, as jubilant Nazi circles predicted that the Rome-Berlin Axis Allies may bring their war with Britain to a victorious conclusion before the end of the summer.

Over the German radio the Fuehrer was hailed by his people, and telegrams to Hitler at his field headquarters from Nazi party leaders congratulated him upon "the most glorious victory in history." The German radio announcer declared:

to all, regardless of past party affiliations, who are true to the faith of the founders of this republic.

"This great patriotic call is worthy of a crusade."

To Keep U. S. At Peace

As to what the Republican party could be expected to do about it if restored to power, Martin declared it would take every possible step to keep American institutions intact both from enemies from within and from without—an "America at peace with the world; an America untainted by hatreds and fears."

To achieve such a peace both at home and abroad, he pledged the party to a purge of all "Trojan Horse" elements from the government in Washington, to the prosecution of a national defense program "amply to protect our shores," and to a drastic revision of New Deal policies—spending and social—to restore economic stability.

But he promised no fiscal miracles. Additional taxes would have to be levied for national defense and to straighten out the financial chaos which he accused the New Deal of bringing down upon the U. S. treasury.

Await Fireworks

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25.—The G. O. P.'s purportedly "unbossed" convention went into its second day today, the 1,000 delegates still dutifully performing preliminary formalities while awaiting the start of the real fire-works tonight—a speech by Herbert Hoover that may start a boom for the former president.

In fact, even as blond, six-foot four-inch Governor Stassen of Minnesota laid the gavel to the wood to get the morning session under way, a "boomlet" was already under way in downtown Philadelphia hotels for the man who yielded the presidency to Franklin D Roosevelt on a rainy March day seven years ago—Herbert Hoover.

As far as the already-weary delegates were concerned, the leading contenders were still the same—Ohio's Senator Taft, New York's crusading Thomas E. Dewey, the amazing Wendell L. Willkie, Michigan's Vandenberg, and so on and on.

Anti-War Plank

The delegates were plenty slow reaching Philadelphia's huge convention hall, last night having been replete with candidate's "parties," marching bands and other noise makers.

True, a platform drafting committee, embroiled in the writing of a strict "anti-war" plank, was in session until 5 o'clock this morning, but everybody knows that only a handful of delegates ever participate in such history-molding endeavors.

Thirty minutes before the scheduled time for today's session, there weren't two hnudred persons in the convention. But oddly enough the two principal actors for the show this morning Governor Stassen, who is serving as temporary chairman, and the Hon. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts—were on hand when they unlocked the doors.

Martin, all set to assume the permanent chairmanship, carried a sheaf of white paper sticking out of one pocket which later proved to be the text of his rip-snorting assault on President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Joe spent the early moments before the session started, shaking hands with members of congress—he's the minority leader in the house—and receiving instructions from Stassen on how to lick the tricky microphone which has bedeviled every speaker to date.

Alf M. Landon the 1936 G. O. P. nominee was not present when the session opened this morning. He was locked in a room downtown with the resolutions committee which he heads, wrestling with the final draft of the platform.

the second ballot. The probabilities are that one of these will be Thompson Bradshaw of Beaver County one of our own two delegates, Bradshaw himself figures the break for Willkie will come on the third ballot.

But as for Willkie, the tousled hair chap from Indiana, who was the guest of honor at the opening of the Pennsylvania Power plant at West Pittsburgh a few months ago he runs counter to any of the accepted rules of political procedure.

Definite Foe Of New Deal

Sunday night there was a gathering of Willkie supporters in the famous old Academy of Music, the spot where Ulysses S. Grant was nominated for his second term in 1872. It was to be a community sing with no formal speeches scheduled. Willkie was there and a demand went up for him to speak. Looking like the Hoosier he is, Willkie got up, leaned against a grand piano with his hands in his pocket and said he wanted the nomination only as a definite foe of the New Deal. Before he got through the crowd of 4,000 nearly tore the seats out.

Old line Republican leaders now concede that if Willkie isn't stopped early he may grab the nomination. Governor Baldwin of Connecticut has come out for him and with him the fourteen votes of the state.

On the first ballot Pennsylvania will give Governor Arthur H. James at least 70 of the state's 72 votes, perhaps all of them. All Sunday night a James pep meeting was held in the Betsy Ross room of the Benjamin Franklin hotel and the meeting developed into something of an eisteddfod.

Captain Roger W. Rowland of New Castle, the James campaign manager was chairman of the meeting. Gov. James was late getting to the meeting and after Rowland and Senator James J. Davis, former Senator David A. Reed and labor secretary Lewis Hines had spoken after Marjorie Scranton of Scranton had put some oomph into the meeting it was suggested that a song fest be held.

Mrs. Anna Wilson Jayne, of Plymoth, Pa., was called to the platform and led the singing and then Governor James came in. He warned against tearing down other candidates, said Pennsylvania was for the Republican candidate whoever he was and promised that if he were the candidate the campaign of 1938 would be just a romp compared to this one.

At the James pep meeting New Castle was well represented. Up around the speaker's table was Deputy Attorney General Orville Brown. Seated a few rows from the from was Mrs. Carl B. Hart. Standing on his tip toes at the back of the hall was B. N. Hanlon, secretary of the New Castle Motor Club, and just outside the door were Judge Thomas W. Dickey and Harold C. Heck. Over in a corner was Attorney Charles R. Davis.

MILD BOOM FOR HERBERT HOOVER AT CONVENTION

tion, but it is Joe Martin's day. The Republican master-mind of the house, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, takes over his duties as permanent chairman of the convention today. In an address, he will continue the attack on Roosevelt policies launched last night by the 33-year-old Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota who keynoted the convention.

The Hoover boom is typed "mild" because of the few delegates in it to date. The former president has 17 followers and an equal number of enemies in the Californian delegation. He has Haigis in the Massachusetts delegation. But Haigis says Hoover has tremendous strength in the convention. He issued a statement saying:

Leader Needed

"Commanding the respect and admiration of the great body of the American people, our former president towers above the bewildering scene about us—a rock of strength. America in this hour needs the steady, experienced hand of Herbert Hoover to chart her course."

Whatever his actual convention strength, Hoover will test it tonight. His visit, reminiscent of that to the Cleveland convention four years ago, will be the signal for a huge demonstration in his behalf. He got one four years ago and it created two rival camps of opposing theorists—one that he could have returned and taken the nomination from Alf M. Landon; another that he was being treated nicely for political reasons but would have been soundly whipped if his name had been put to the roll-call.

This time, the Hooverites are really serious in attempting to test out convention sentiment toward their old chief. It may be his name will be submitted to the convention as a full-fledged candidate—or his friends may wait for a deadlock to press his chance.

On his reception tonight depends the decision.

FRANCE OBSERVERS DAY OF MOURNING

day Premier Marshal Henri Petain will deliver a radio broadcast to the French people.

Although at 1:35 a. m. fighting ceased on the blood-soaked battle fields, there was little in Bordeaux to mark cessation of hostilities. End of the war came as an anti-climax to the French people, for the public has known for some days that it was inevitable that France bow to the dictates of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

As the battered French armies relaxed in the first rest they have known since the invasion of the low countries on May 10, the civilian population filed into churches and with heads bowed in national grief, prayed for the souls of their dead, their wounded, and some, for the living.

NAZI BOMBERS MAKE ATTACKS UPON BRITAIN

Nazi bombs elsewhere in Britain, exact location unspecified in the official announcement.

The first sign of the enemy's approach was shortly after midnight when the sounds of plane engines were heard over the southwest coast. Anti-aircraft searchlights and batteries went into immediate action, and royal air force fighting planes took wing, but no details of the damage or casualties the British may have caused the invaders were revealed.

At the very moment that the "cease firing" order was given in France, three waves of German bombers were winging at great height over the northeastern areas of England, and two Nazi bombers were sighted over Wales.

Britain Retaliates

Meanwhile, Britain promptly retaliated today against the French capitulation to Italy and Germany, by extending the British blockade to cover French European territories.

Britain thus placed her former Ally in the category of an adversary where only a week ago France had been counted a staunch British Ally.

The new blockade went into effect at midnight, under an order from the board of trade forbidding commerce in all classes of goods with French European territory, including the island of Corsica in the Mediterranean.

Significantly, French colonies were exempted from the blockade order, indicating British hopes that the newly-formed French "national committee' in London may lead the colonies into continuing the conflict alongside of Britain.

Britain already has announced she will recognize the exiled "national committee" as the true government of free France, declaring relations with the Bordeaux regime of Premier Marshal Henri Petain terminated because the French government "obviously is acting under the duress of a conqueror."

General Charles De Gaulle, head of the "national committee" in London, said he is "convinced that all parts of the French empire will continue fighting and I have reason to think that the French fleet will not surrender to the enemy."

Keynoter Tears Into New Deal Record

Young Governor Stirs Delegates

Gov. Harold E. Stassen Of Minnesota Delivers G. O. P. Keynote Address

DECLARES NEW DEAL PROGRAM FAILURE

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Delegates to the Republican National Convention returned to convention hall today with the ringing phrases of youthful Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, keynoter of the gathering, still fresh in their memory.

Stassen, 33-year-old executive, received a tremendous ovation as he tore into the New Deal, denouncing it as a "failure" and warning that a change of government "before it is too late" is necessary to the national welfare. In developing this theme, Governor Stassen drew a parallel between the present administration and the pre-war leaders in England and France, both forced from office by the exigencies of national defense.

President Roosevelt's recent summoning of two Republican stalwarts, Henry L. Stimson and Col. Frank Knox, to head, respectively, the war and naval departments was characterized by Stassen as a confession of "failure" in national defense preparations.

Not Pleasant Task

"It is not a pleasant task," he said, "to criticize those in positions of governmental authority. Yet it is absolutely essential to the functioning of democracy.

"It was not easy for the people of England to criticize their pre-war government, yet how essential—in fact, how belated—was their change. It was not easy for the people of France to criticize their pre-war government or their pre-war generals, yet how necessary and how fatally delayed was their change."

Stassen urged "decisive and determined" action to implement the current defense program. He laid blame for the current state of this country's military establishment squarely on the New Deal doorstep, observing that for seven years the administration has enjoyed "strong majorities in both houses of Congress." He emphasized:

"They have had complete authority and they must take full responsibility for what has happened so far as government is concerned during these past seven years."

that the end of the war in continental Europe followed an evening of steadily reduced activity.

At the very moment of termination, it was claimed, Italian troops under Crown Prince Humbert were holding French soil in the Alps beyond Blachere. The Riviera seacoast road also had been taken under difficult conditions, it was stated.

Guns Are Silenced

But the instant the hands of the clock reached the appointed minute, the roaring guns became silent and an eerie stillness blanketed the vast battlelines where a single minute before the bursting of shells and the rat-tat-a-tat of quick-fire guns rent the air.

The French-Italian armistice was signed exactly 48 hours and 25 minutes after the French capitulated to Germany's dictates in the same historic railway car in Compiegne forest where the Allies dictated their armistice terms to Germany in 1918.

General Charles Huntziger, member of France's supreme war council, signed the Italian armistice for his country as he had previously signed the agreement with the Nazis. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian army chief of staff, signed for Fascist Italy.

Twenty minutes after Huntziger and Badoglio had affixed their signatures to the historic document Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano telephoned Berlin formal notification of the French capitulation, and immediately the orders to cease fire early this morning were started out to the commanders on both sides in the battle lines.

While details of the Italian terms were not available, it is evident that Italy, after only fourteen days of participation in the conflict, and at virtually insignificant cost in lives and material, had gained a substantial victory.

JUBILANT GERMANY CELEBRATES VICTORY

bugles over the German radio early today signalized the actual end of the fighting.

Precisely at 1:35 o'clock this morning (7:35 p. m. EDT Monday) a Nazi military bugler stepped up to the microphone in Berlin and throughout the Reich sounded the trumpet call "Das Ganze Halt," (the great halt) and a moment later an announcer proclaimed that at that moment combat on all fronts in France had halted.

Reich Celebrates

Throughout the Reich today flags were flown in celebration, and church bells pealed out victoriously, as jubilant Nazi circles predicted that the Rome-Berlin Axis Allies may bring their war with Britain to a victorious conclusion before the end of the summer.

Over the German radio the Fuehrer was hailed by his people, and telegrams to Hitler at his field headquarters from Nazi party leaders congratulated him upon "the most glorious victory in history." The German radio announcer declared:

"In commemoration of the war dead all Germans at home and abroad look to our Fuehrer who has restored Germany from the deepest humiliation to unity. Eighty million Germans unite in the cry: 'Long live the Fuehrer.'"

to all, regardless of past party affiliations, who are true to the faith of the founders of this republic.

"This great patriotic call is worthy of a crusade."

To Keep U. S. At Peace

As to what the Republican party could be expected to do about it if restored to power, Martin declared it would take every possible step to keep American institutions intact both from enemies from within and from without—an "America at peace with the world; an America untainted by hatreds and fears."

To achieve such a peace both at home and abroad, he pledged the party to a purge of all "Trojan Horse" elements from the government in Washington, to the prosecution of a national defense program "amply to protect our shores," and to a drastic revision of New Deal policies—spending and social—to restore economic stability.

But he promised no fiscal miracles. Additional taxes would have to be levied for national defense and to straighten out the financial chaos which he accused the New Deal of bringing down upon the U. S. treasury.

Await Fireworks

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25.—The G. O. P.'s purportedly "unbossed" convention went into its second day today, the 1,000 delegates still dutifully performing preliminary formalities while awaiting the start of the real fire-works tonight—a speech by Herbert Hoover that may start a boom for the former president.

In fact, even as blond, six-foot four-inch Governor Stassen of Minnesota laid the gavel to the wood to get the morning session under way, a "boomlet" was already under way in downtown Philadelphia hotels for the man who yielded the presidency to Franklin D Roosevelt on a rainy March day seven years ago—Herbert Hoover.

As far as the already-weary delegates were concerned, the leading contenders were still the same—Ohio's Senator Taft, New York's crusading Thomas E. Dewey, the amazing Wendell L. Willkie, Michigan's Vandenberg, and so on and on.

Anti-War Plank

The delegates were plenty slow reaching Philadelphia's huge convention hall, last night having been replete with candidate's "parties," marching bands and other noise makers.

True, a platform drafting committee, embroiled in the writing of a strict "anti-war" plank, was in session until 5 o'clock this morning, but everybody knows that only a handful of delegates ever participate in such history-molding endeavors.

Thirty minutes before the scheduled time for today's session, there weren't two hnudred persons in the convention. But oddly enough the two principal actors for the show this morning Governor Stassen, who is serving as temporary chairman, and the Hon. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts—were on hand when they unlocked the doors.

Martin, all set to assume the permanent chairmanship, carried a sheaf of white paper sticking out of one pocket which later proved to be the text of his rip-snorting assault on President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Joe spent the early moments before the session started, shaking hands with members of congress—he's the minority leader in the house—and receiving instructions from Stassen on how to lick the tricky microphone which has bedeviled every speaker to date.

Alf M. Landon the 1936 G. O. P. nominee was not present when the session opened this morning. He was locked in a room downtown with the resolutions committee which he heads, wrestling with the final draft of the platform.

He said that Great Britain agreed to permit the French to ask Germany for terms of an armistice providing that the French fleet would be dispatched to British ports during the armistice negotiations.

"Solemn assurances were given us," he said, "that the French fleet would never be allowed to fall into German hands. . . .

the second ballot. The probabilities are that one of these will be Thompson Bradshaw of Beaver County one of our own two delegates, Bradshaw himself figures the break for Willkie will come on the third ballot.

But as for Willkie, the tousled hair chap from Indiana, who was the guest of honor at the opening of the Pennsylvania Power plant at West Pittsburgh a few months ago he runs counter to any of the accepted rules of political procedure.

Definite Foe Of New Deal

Sunday night there was a gathering of Willkie supporters in the famous old Academy of Music, the spot where Ulysses S. Grant was nominated for his second term in 1872. It was to be a community sing with no formal speeches scheduled. Willkie was there and a demand went up for him to speak. Looking like the Hoosier he is, Willkie got up, leaned against a grand piano with his hands in his pocket and said he wanted the nomination only as a definite foe of the New Deal. Before he got through the crowd of 4,000 nearly tore the seats out.

Old line Republican leaders now concede that if Willkie isn't stopped early he may grab the nomination. Governor Baldwin of Connecticut has come out for him and with him the fourteen votes of the state.

On the first ballot Pennsylvania will give Governor Arthur H. James at least 70 of the state's 72 votes, perhaps all of them. Ali Sunday night a James pep meeting was held in the Betsy Ross room of the Benjamin Franklin hotel and the meeting developed into something of an eisteddfod.

Captain Roger W. Rowland of New Castle, the James campaign manager was chairman of the meeting. Gov. James was late getting to the meeting and after Rowland and Senator James J. Davis, former Senator David A. Reed and labor secretary Lewis Hines had spoken, after Marjorie Scranton of Scranton had put some oomph into the meeting it was suggested that a song fest be held.

Mrs. Anna Wilson Jayne, of Plymoth, Pa., was called to the platform and led the singing and then Governor James came in. He warned against tearing down other candidates, said Pennsylvania was for the Republican candidate whoever he was and promised that if he were the candidate the campaign of 1938 would be just a romp compared to this one.

At the James pep meeting New Castle was well represented. Up around the speaker's table was Deputy Attorney General Orville Brown. Seated a few rows from the from was Mrs. Carl B. Hart. Standing on his tip toes at the back of the hall was B. N. Hanlon, secretary of the New Castle Motor Club, and just outside the door were Judge Thomas W. Dickey and Harold C. Heck. Over in a corner was Attorney Charles R. Davis.

The meeting was a compliment to Governor James for the room couldn't hold half of the crowd that wanted to get in. Governor James' admonition to the crowd to refrain from attacking any other candidate has been well received here and should result in some good feeling when the campaign starts.

day Premier Marshal Henri Petain will deliver a radio broadcast to the French people.

Although at 1:35 a. m. fighting ceased on the blood-soaked battle fields, there was little in Bordeaux to mark cessation of hostilities. End of the war came as an anti-climax to the French people, for the public has known for some days that it was inevitable that France bow to the dictates of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

As the battered French armies relaxed in the first rest they have known since the invasion of the low countries on May 10, the civilian population filed into churches and with heads bowed in national grief, prayed for the souls of their dead, their wounded, and some, for the living.

Nazi bombs elsewhere in Britain, exact location unspecified in the official announcement.

The first sign of the enemy's approach was shortly after midnight when the sounds of plane engines were heard over the southwest coast. Anti-aircraft searchlights and batteries went into immediate action, and royal air force fighting planes took wing, but no details of the damage or casualties the British may have caused the invaders were revealed.

At the very moment that the "cease firing" order was given in France, three waves of German bombers were winging at great height over the northeastern areas of England, and two Nazi bombers were sighted over Wales.

Britain Retaliates

Meanwhile, Britain promptly retaliated today against the French capitulation to Italy and Germany, by extending the British blockade to cover French European territories.

Britain thus placed her former Ally in the category of an adversary where only a week ago France had been counted a staunch British Ally.

The new blockade went into effect at midnight, under an order from the board of trade forbidding commerce in all classes of goods with French European territory, including the island of Corsica in the Mediterranean.

Significantly, French colonies were exempted from the blockade order, indicating British hopes that the newly-formed French "national committee' in London may lead the colonies into continuing the conflict alongside of Britain.

Britain already has announced she will recognize the exiled "national committee" as the true government of free France, declaring relations with the Bordeaux regime of Premier Marshal Henri Petain terminated because the French government "obviously is acting under the duress of a conqueror."

General Charles De Gaulle, head of the "national committee" in London, said he is "convinced that all parts of the French empire will continue fighting and I have reason to think that the French fleet will not surrender to the enemy."

HAVANA EGG PRICES SAG

HAVANA.—Eggs frequently sell for as little as 12 cents a dozen, at nearby farms but the members of the Havana Province Farmers Federation are not happy about it. Following a complaint to Secretary of Commerce Oscar Bonachea by a federation delegation, the secretary promised to propose legislation fixing a minimum price which will insure a profit margin.

Cancel Flying Class At Grove City College

Due to the fact that there is an apparent lack of interest in the Civil Aeronautics Authority flying course in the Grove City district, it is not likely that a class of student pilots will be organized at Grove City college, this summer, according to Dr. Weir Ketler, president.

Earlier this week, contracts for 15 students from this college were awarded to a local instructor by the Washington office of the C. A. A., but there will undoubtedly be cancelled.

WAR OF NERVES HITS AMERICANS

PSYCHIATRISTS who gathered in New York last week for the meeting of the American Medical Association reported that a "war of nerves" caused by the war news from Europe is afflicting persons everywhere in this country.

There has been a tremendous increase in such ailments as headaches, digestive disturbances, insomnia, loss of appetite, respiratory ills, melancholia, fatigue, upset mental state and general "breathlessness" and jitteriness. The physicians attribute most of it to anxiety over the war, to apprehension over future security and the well-being of democracy and civilization, to fear lest the war spread to this country and to distress over the sufferings of war-stricken people abroad.

All of us know the symptoms of war nerves pretty well by this time. There are few who can read the news from Europe without at least a sinking feeling in the stomach.

The psychiatrists are probably correct in their diagnosis, but what is needed is an effective prescription to get rid of war nerves by eliminating their cause. That, more the pity, is outside the medical field.

THE SUBURBAN TREND OF POPULATION

As more census returns come in from various cities it becomes increasingly evident that decline in population in cities since 1930 is nothing to be alarmed about. It is part of a marked urban trend. Population growth in our cities is slowing down.

In seventy-three cities with more than 25,000 inhabitants the average population increase for the decade is placed at only 6.4 per cent. The same cities in the previous census had shown a gain of 24.2 per cent. Fifteen of the cities actually registered a decrease.

The Census Bureau ascribes losses in population or declines in increase largely to shifts of residents to suburbs beyond the corporate limits. It is such a shift that has kept most cities' total population at almost the same figure between 1930 and 1940.

DRINK MORE MILK

During the month of June, practically every citizen came in touch with "Dairy Month" promotional material. For June-time was milk-time this year, and the retailers of the country worked together to stimulate consumption.

From the standpoint of national health, every month should be dairy month. Our consumption of milk, by both children and adults, is far below the levels held advisable by dieticians. In every home, milk should be a staple part of the daily diet.

So keep the slogan "drink more milk" in mind. It is sound medical advice. And, from the economic standpoint, substantially increased consumption of dairy products would be a boon to farmers in all the states—and would create a wealth of purchasing power which would be felt in urban no less than rural areas.

TURNING TO HISTORY

Librarians report that people are turning eagerly to history in an effort to find some explanation, to arrive at some understanding, of what is going on in the world today.

That is natural enough. But the reading of a little history, like the acquiring of a little knowledge of any kind, is a dangerous thing. There are, it is true, certain superficial parallels between what is going on today and what went on when the French Revolutionary armies swept across Europe. There have been invaders before, and aggressors, and conquerors.

But there are new aspects to the rapidly unfolding fate of Europe today to which history offers few parallels. As people of the past were largely guided by what bravery and common sense they could muster in the face of circumstances, so we must carve out our own fate in our own world. So much, at least, history seems to teach.

President Roosevelt wants to unite the nations of the Western Hemisphere. No chain, however, is stronger than its weakest link. And some of those Latin American nations look powerful weak.

A lot of politicians have programs for rescuing agriculture but the best one we know of for helping the average farmer is proper cultivation of the soil and a timely shower now and then.

One thing Europe is almost sure to get as a result of this war, no matter which side wins, is a first class famine. And we are still paying our farmers a billion a year to reduce production.

An Englishwoman was awarded a divorce the othery day because her husband hadn't spoken to her around the house for seven years. Maybe the poor fellow never had a chance.

As the opposition party the Republicans, in convention assembled, should not be blamed for viewing with alarm. It has been a long time since there was a better chance.

A five-week-old child turns up with two molars, to the surprise of everybody, and in a few weeks more will probably be endorsing six different brands of tooth paste.

It is proposed America buy up South American products for resale to Europe. And if Europe won't pay the asking price, then the taxpayers will have to.

If Hitler ever tries to send an army to the United States he will find it's a lot harder to get back over the Atlantic Ocean than it is over the British Channel.

When finding themselves in a cocky mood, government leaders at Washington should remind themselves that those warships will not be completed until 1943.

The world used to look down upon "Darkest Africa," but it is possible that in these days it would be a pretty good place in which to live.

Hitler has proved pretty good at running, but when he faces the English Channel he will have to show an equal ability in hopping.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SLEEP-WALKERS CAN BE CURED

THERE IS AN old superstition that a person walking in his sleep is physically safe. He is not. Every now and then we read in the newspaper of a death resulting from a fall during sleep-walking.

Many psychiatrists assume that the cure of sleep-walking (somnambulism) is best effected by mental treatment of the patient while awake. No doubt some cures are effected in this manner. Certainly it should do no harm to look into the behavior and experiences of the adult somnambulist, and then remove all possible worries and other emotional disturbances from his daily wakeful life.

On Physician's Advice

As for children under 10 or 12 who, upon examination by a competent physician, are found to have hearts that are healthy physically, a shock treatment is probably the surest and simplest cure. But you had better not employ it except on the advice of your physician.

Suppose you have a child who has been carefully checked by your physician and found physically sound, who begins prowling about in his sleep. A dash of a pail of cold water on him, or a good whack on his anatomy with razor strop, might do the trick. The only two cases of sleepwalking I have known well have been treated in this fashion. Though they were chronic sleepwalkers, they never walked in their sleep after just one such treatment.

The one was a young nurse. Her roommate set several washbowls by the bed with large cakes of ice in them. When the nurse rose in her sleep to walk about, her bare feet pressed upon the ice—o-o-o-o!—and the shock was permanently effective. In the other instance, the boy of fifteen had his last sleep walk on the night when a single lusty whack of a razor strop shocked him into waking.

Danger In Buildings

And just in passing may I urge my fellow parents to keep their runabout children away from buildings under construction? Although it is great fun for these children to play games of chase and hide-and-go-seek about a brick or lumber pile and to climb among the framework, the physical hazards are very great. Greater still the moral hazards, since the children are trespassing, much to the annoyance of the owner of the property. We parents owe it to our children to teach them to respect the rights and possessions of others.

If you would like to read further remarks of mine in this direction, write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it and let me send you a reprint of a magazine article I wrote under the title, "Do you spank your children?"

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THE ALIEN

It is estimated that there are 3,500,000 unnaturalized foreigners living in the United States. Perhaps there are not that many and perhaps there are more. It is hard to estimate until all the records of the last census have been compiled to know, approximately, how many, but Washington says there are that number living among us.

Immigration has been very much restricted during the last twenty-five years but notwithstanding the restrictions there have come to live among us a great many dangerous men and women.

There is much hysteria just now evidenced by our representatives in congress concerning these aliens. Congress has, for instance, declared that no unnaturalized citizen shall be employed upon government work. They are barred from employment by the W. P. A. and the P. W. A. Yet they are here and what are we going to do with them.

Many of these aliens would make good citizens. Many of them do not appreciate at all the conditions under which life is offered to them within this nation. Some of them are German sympathizers and believe that Herr Hitler's government is the ideal government. Some of them think that Soviet Russia is the last word in government excellence. Some of them are great admirers of Mussolini and his work in Italy. These are denominated, generally, by the public as Communists and yet no thinking man can consider the government of either Germany and Italy as a Communistic government. Russia is, but each of these governments is autocratic, absolute, in which the ciitzens, subjects of these governments, have no voice whatsoever, no freedom of expression, no freedom of business, and as much as possible, no freedom of thought.

The great problem now confronting this country is how to separate the wheat from the chaff—how to rid ourselves of a dangerous alien and make a citizen out of the worthwhile alien.

Take one instance of a dangerous alien — Harry Bridges. I do not know whether Harry Bridges is a Communist or not. It makes no difference. He is considered by Madame Perkins a very influential member of the Roosevelt Cabinet—as a worthwhile leader of labor. The fact remains that he is not in accord with the purposes of this government, unless the government is ready to turn its control over to racketeers, body, soul and britches.

In many a home, there is an adolescent girl teasing her parents to send her to a fashionable school which they can ill afford. To humor her, they scrimp so that she can realize this dream. But when she gets there, she is still discontented because she lacks the clothes that wealthier girls wear.

Purposed to abolish such class consciousness more and more progressive schools are each year adopting a uniform for girls—generally of a stylish navy blue pattern. Thus the daughters of millionaires and of poor parents on relief all look alike so far as outer vestments are concerned. As a result, many of the latter class appear more attractive than many of the former category, and the poorer girls are relieved of their inferiority complexes.

The Britisher began with:

"George III, who, like the sun in its meridian spreads a luster throughout and enlightens the world."

The Frenchman fololwed with: "The illustrious Louis XVI, who, like the moon, sheds mild and benignant rays upon and influences the globe."

It was Dr. Franklin's turn and he came through with:

"George Washington, commander of the American armies, who like Joshua of old- commanded the sun and moon to stand still—and they obeyed him."

What's What At A Glance

Taxpayers Face Increased Taxation
Display Good Spirit Over Situation
Believe Money For Defense Is Needed

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, June 25.—"Never before," wrote a Washington news correspondent to his home newspaper the other day, following an afternoon of listening to proceedings in the senate and house of representatives, "has the American public manifested so remarkable a willingness to be taxed as at present."

This particular correspondent was by no means the only congressional observer who has noticed the average citizen's inclination to carry any financial burden that the lawmakers see fit to lay upon him in the name of national defense.

It's been recognized on Capitol Hill as a hitherto infallible rule that higher taxes mustn't even be hinted at in an election year, like this one. The political party whose spokesmen refer favorably to such a policy invariably, in the past, have suffered correspondingly from the voters' dissatisfaction, subsequently expressed at the polls.

It initially was assumed that the present situation was as usual.

That the outbreak of the blitzkrieg rendered heavy military expenditures by Uncle Sam urgently necessary generally was recognized.

But the Bill?

But how to foot the bill was an awful puzzle to the lawmakers. Uncle Samuel owes so much already that they shrank from pledging his credit still farther. Yet the only alternative seemed to be the imposition of increased levies upon the taxpayers and in a big addition to their number, through a broadening of the income tax base.

Well, the solons were afraid to adopt this latter course. They reckoned that they simply would be guaranteeing their own political extinction in November if they offended their tax-paying constituents.

Various schemes were discussed, by which several of the legislators calculated they might contrive to run the country farther into debt for defensive purposes under cover of some sort of bookkeeper's sleight-of-hand that would conceal the fact that we merely were running farther and farther into the red.

The plan didn't promise very well, however. For one thing, it was obvious that many people would see through it from the first. And evidently it couldn't be depended on to fool anybody except for a little while.

By this time the indications were becoming manifest that here's an instance in which the idea of higher taxation isn't resented as ordinarily it is.

Press Comment

The press began commenting on it, as an extraordinary situation. Editorial writers put forward the suggestion, "Higher taxes are inevitable eventually; why not now?"

Lately, their home mail has been bringing in to senators and representatives the advice to go ahead with the whole defense taxation program without further delay or attempts at camouflage.

It's unprecedented all right. Legislators scarcely can believe their eyes and ears. Their best judgment is that the American people really are alarmed for the safety of their sort of democracy unless the new world is "loaded for bear".

One other consideration is mentioned by some of the lawmakers: Our present pro-high-taxation taxpayers are urging higher taxes in the future; not right now. If there are to be increases they must be voted in a hurry, but they won't be collectable until the next fiscal year rolls around.

The public thinks it's thoroughly liberal as of today, with its next tax bills still a 12-month ahead. But there are some of our solons who predict that an entirely different song will be sung a year hence, when the collector begins scattering his requisitions about on the basis of approximately a 10 per cent increase in rates.

LOVE BLUNDERS

Love took hold of Henry Carter in a most emphatic way
And it made a dreamer of him on his busiest business day.
To the firm's most favored patrons
he seemed vacancy complete.
Every simple question asked him he would beg them to repeat.

Socks were sent to Mrs. Wilson, who had purchased a chemise.
Henry Carter's mind was straying
like a leaf upon a breeze,
And the fussy Mr. Watson, who had bought and needed socks,
Didn't like it when delivered two chemises in a box.

When the favored patrons grumble all employers start to think.
All employers lose their tempers
when the sales begin to shrink.
And they sent for Henry Carter and they asked him to explain,
But he didn't like to tell them 'twas because of Mary Jane.

He didn't like to tell them that his brain was all awhirl
And all that he could think of was the city's loveliest girl.
So he simply said, "I'm sorry!" and they answered, "Out with you!"
All the world may love a lover, but the bosses seldom do.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

The Miracle May Happen

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.

AT the start of its gathering, the great trouble with this Republican National Convention seems to be that it is too democratic. It badly needs a boss. It is all very well to talk about it being free, untrammeled and uncontrolled. It is. But it also is a very confused, incoherent, irresponsible and unpredictable body.

IF it performs in anything like a statesmanlike manner it will be an accident. If it nominates the best available man on the best possible platform it will be a miracle. Actually, the setup seems dead against doing either of those things. There not only is no one man in position to be regarded as a leader, but there is no group of leaders capable of controlling whose ideas as to issues or as to men run along the same general lines.

INSTEAD, the uninstructed or favorite son delegates, who constitute a majority, are largely in the pockets of State politicians, most of whom are roosting on the fence until they see which way the cat is going to jump and who are primarily concerned about their "local situations." So far as the balance of the delegates are concerned, they are pledged to the two leading contestants—Senator Taft and Mr. Dewey. Some of them can be swung in a deal, shifted, switched or traded, but by no means all of them. The largest block of swingable delegates are the seventy-two from Pennsylvania, generally credited with being directed by Mr. Joseph Pew, who is holding them in the name of Governor James, but is genuinely anxious to nominate the strongest man, whoever he may be.

THESE being the political facts, it is interesting to cite the odds which a group of experienced journalistic and political observers are agreed accurately reflects the situation as it exists at this writing. Their opinion is that Taft is now a 1-to-3 bet; that Dewey is a 1-to-4 bet; that Willkie is a 1-to-5 bet, with Hoover, Vandenberg and other possibilities not better than a 1-to-20 bet. But—and this is the significant thing—there was practically unanimous agreement that if there are more than five ballots without a decision, Mr. Willkie will become better than an even bet.

THAT these odds diagnose the situation with a fair degree of accuracy is attested by two things—first, the intense concentration of the Taft and Dewey forces upon achieving enough votes to present a bandwagon appearance—not on the first ballot but on the second or third, which will be the really vital ones, because by then the smaller favorite son candidates will have been shaken out; second, the savagery of their attack upon Mr. Willkie. The Willkie candidacy, of course, is one of the strangest phenomenons of politics. Nothing quite like it has been seen in the country before.

HERE he is—a public utility executive, which fact alone should be enough to disqualify him according to orthodox rules, just born into the Republican party four years ago, now asking a convention of native-son Republicans for its highest prize. Naturally, this strikes the regular Republican politician as a shocking piece of presumption. It seems incredible that the candidacy of such a man should menace the ambitions of the two regular Republicans, who, until he loomed up, running fast from the rear, seemed to have the field to themselves. It is not surprising that it has given them the first common ground since they became candidates and has brought about a state of mind among their friends in which they speak favorably of Mr. Hoover as far preferable to Mr. Willkie and assail the latter as Wall Street's candidate and Morgan's man.

NEITHER of those things is true and Mr. Willkie, as a candidate, could make mincemeat out of any responsible person who made the charge. But those facts do not keep the allegations from being spread among the supposedly skittish Western delegates. Beyond doubt, some of these have been badly frightened and there exists a considerable and articulate feeling against Mr. Willkie. On the other hand, considering that he has absolutely no political organization and none but amateurs looking after his interest here, the fact that he is, even as of today, a 1-to-5 bet is an astounding thing. Actually, the convention is divided between those who think he would be the weakest candidate the party could name and those who are convinced that this is no time to play politics along ordinary lines and that Mr. Willkie is

Finds Convention Most Serious And Determined

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—The most unbossed, most serious and most determined Republican convention in 20 years.

This is the way former Republican house leader Bertrand H. Snell of New York, a power in the party for years, characterized the Republicans who came here to pick a presidential standard-bearer.

"It is by far the most serious convention since that which nominated Harding in 1920," said Snell. "At that time the nation was emerging from the World war and faced an uncertain economic future. It now is confronted with a deadly serious international situation.

"Whatever comes out of the convention, no one can say that it is a bossed convention. It is perhaps the most unbossed convention I ever saw.

"What the delegates want, I find, is to nominate a presidential candidate who will do a real job—one who is a real executive."

Snell, who was permanent chairman of the Republican convention which renominated Hoover in 1932, voiced optimism over the future of the party because of the attitude of the delegates.

"There is less animosity among the delegations supporting rival candidates than is usual in a national convention," said Snell.

"The delegates want to do the right thing. They are more interested in trying to be of real service to the country than they are in any political gain for themselves.

"This attitude of delegates assures a united party behind whoever is selected as the presidential candidate. That's half the battle in politics."

Snell spoke from the detached attitude of a political veteran with no ax to grind. He voluntarily retired from congress and active political life.

URGES DEAF START TO SCHOOL EARLIER

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 25.—A recommendation that deaf children be placed in school earlier is made by Dr. Harold Westlake, instructor in speech at the Pennsylvania State College, on the basis of new studies in which he has discovered that children can speak many words which they cannot hear. Previously this was not believed true.

"Deaf children go through a stage of babbling and vocal play just as ordinary children do," he said. "It would be much easier to teach the deafened child speech between the ages of two and five when the child is still babbling than it is to wait until he is about seven or eight years old as we now do.

Three tables of bridge occupied the early period, with honor prizes going to Mrs. Glenn Eppinger and Mary Guenwald. Lunch was a later pleasure, which was most cleverly carried out in keeping with the nuptial motif. The table was also colorfully arranged in the seasons appointments, the places being marked with miniature nabisco "treasure chests."

In conclusion, the honoree was presented with an array of beautiful gifts for her future home.

Guests were present from Buffalo, N. Y., and this vicinity.

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—A $200 increase in the annual salaries of Ellwood City and Grove City postmasters will go into effect next July 1.

On that date the offices will be advanced from second to first class. This results from increased postal receipts at the two cities. At the same time the annual salary of each of the two postmasters will be boosted from $3,000 to $3,200.

HOW GERMANY AND ITALY DIVIDE DEFEATED FRANCE

Under the terms of the armistice signed by France, Germany will occupy the areas in this map surrounded by heavy borders while Italy was to take over the areas that are shaded. When Germany and Italy occupy these territories, France will be reduced to the state of an inland island, deprived of all seaports, major industrial cities and her richest agricultural regions.

British Bomber Blasts Nazi Munitions Train

One of the most unusual photographs to come from the war so far, this picture was snapped from a British bombing plane during an attack on a German horse-drawn ammunition train in Flanders. Men from the train can be seen sprinting across the fields at right as they flee the rain of machine-gun bullets. Smoke rising from along the road indicates the fliers have scored vital hits and slowed Nazi preparations for an attack on Britain. (Central Press)

a better caretaker, stay home, or put up with the consequences.

Q. Would you ever admit to the child that you had commanded or punished him wrongly?

A. Yes, indeed; and I'd apologize to him sincerely and penitently. I've done it. Every other parent who tries to be fair and just to his children has.

Q. My boy of five hits his sister three years old sometimes. I punished him for it but it does no good.

A. You punish him after the sister has "squealed" on him. She gets rewarded in seeing him punished and he feels very angry about it, awaiting another opportunity to get even with her. The chances are that she is the chief offender, the younger of two usually is; that she so hampers his activity and messes up his things that he can endure the annoyance no longer. It might be well to observe her when they play together. Be sure to train her to respect his possessions and him to respect hers. You should serve as policeman to see that each is protected against the inroads of the other. And don't try to force him to give up his things to her just because she is little.

CITY FINDS FISH AND GAS IN WELL DUG FOR WATER

(International News Service)

ALAMOSA, Colo.—The city of Alamosa recently drilled a 1549 foot well to augment the city's artesian water supply.

Water is what the city was bargaining for, but fish and gas were thrown in for good measure.

Roy Boller, water superintendent said he was unable to understand the fish and gas in the well, though the water is of first rate quality.

The gas sends forth a steady stream of bubbles with water as it gushes out of the deep well.

The fish, which are two to three inches long, swim about in a pool formed by the well, at the foot of a big water tower, and City Engineer D. H. Edwards, stated that while he has not seen them come out of the well, neither has he seen them come from anywhere else.

Artesian water comes from sand and gravel strata in Alamosa, and not from underground streams flowing through caverns from which fish might come.

the one man who could make a winning fight against Mr. Roosevelt.

AS to the platform drafting, it obviously is a dreadful job. It has to be done wholly in the dark. No human being, for example, can foresee the war developments three weeks from now, much less know what the international picture will look like by election day. And, although Mr. Roosevelt's nomination for a third term seems assured when the Democrats meet in July, no one here can be completely certain about that or about what the Democratic platform, dictated by the Roosevelt advisers, will say on foreign policy or on anything else.

IN addition, there are deep divisions among the Republicans themselves. One element wants to veer toward the isolation point of view, offering only sympathy to England and concentrating on our own defense. Another wants to be as militantly anti-F[illegible] and pro-English—with everything we have except an expeditionary force—as Mr. Roosevelt himself. Another wants to trim and generalize in an effort to find the politically expedient rather than the really right thing to do. It is a tough job the platform drafters have to do. It is difficult to see how they are going to lift their party, in the matter of principles, above the ordinary political level. Under existing circumstances it is not easy to frame a document that will convince the country of the party's ability to measure up to so great an emergency. However, it is a mistake to think that the work of drafting is not in able hands. The real drafters of the platform are former Senator George Wharton Pepper and Mr. Glenn Frank. Unless they are overruled, which, of course, is a possibility, the fact that they are doing the work means two things—first, that the platform will be literate; second, that it will be high-minded.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SUMMER CARE

Next to clothes, which we discussed yesterday, probably the detail in which most mothers err in summer is food. As I said yesterday, proper care for the baby when the heat is intense, isn't much of a problem. Baby doesn't react any differently to heat than you do yourself. The only difference is that he can't follow his natural inclinations, such as taking off extra clothing, or eating summery foods, as freely as you do. He has to depend on you and your judgment.

Consider your own appetite when it's ninety in the shade. Doesn't it do funny things such as turn against foods you crave when it's colder? Some persons, as you know, lose their desire to eat almost entirely in the hot weather. "Oh, it's too hot to eat" is something you hear everywhere.

A mother naturally always wants baby to eat plenty. She has the best intentions in the world, too, for she knows that in this way he builds up his strength. She sometimes forgets, however, that a heat wave may have taken the edge off his appetite and coaxes or forces him to eat regardless. As a result he may do one of two things—vomit or develop diarrhea. And it's difficult enough to get baby through a heat wave without having either of these to cope with.

The wise mother adjusts feedings to the heat. If the child has been nursing ten minutes on each breast every four hours, the mother should cut these feedings down to five or six minutes. This will be enough. But, of course, for her own protection the extra milk in the breast must be emptied manually.

And let me say here that an imperative injunction for safe Summer care of the breast-fed baby is: "Don't wean, if it can possibly be helped, until cool weather comes." The maternal dinner-pail will do very nicely for baby until it is nine or 10 minths old.

When the baby's feedings have been cut about a third, as recommended above, he will want extra water between feedings. This extra water is very important in hot weather for it is so easy for a baby to become dehydrated.

The same procedure is followed with the bottle-fed baby. If the day's feeding consists of thirty ounces of milk and ten of water, then twenty-five ounces of milk and fifteen of water will be a proper hot weather change.

Of course, mothers mustn't be too zealous in this cutting down of feedings. The reductions should be regulated by the heat and effect on the baby's weight. If feedings are cut too drastically, malnutrition will develop, of course.

If baby is bottle-fed, it obviously is of the greatest importance in Summer that his milk be kept sweet and uncontaminated. Unless the milk is kept at a very low temperature in a dark place, any germ that may have been introduced despite all precautions, will multiply.

Tomorrow: More about Summer care of baby.

Various aliases are scattered here and there on the police books of this city. To some the names appear somewhat amusing but police know exactly to whom the names belong. Here are the names of some of the persons who have at some time or another fallen into police custody according to Chief Willis G. McMullen: Pock Nose, offense bootlegger; Hop About, Par Boots, Snookey, Big Mouth, Little Mouth, Monk, (woman), Big Head, T-Bo, meaning T-Bones, because of a scar, Poor Boy, Chew-To-Bacco (woman), The Bear, Czar, The Sergeant, Lieutenant and Dangerous Blues, now gone from this city. According to the chief, nicknames usually were assigned by James Wysner when he was a member of the police force. He would ask a stranger while patrolling the city, his name. The policeman instantly assigned a nickname to the man, determined his address and from then on the man's face, name and address was written indelibly in Wysner's mind.

An invitation to the public to visit and inspect N.Y.A. work projects, shops and local offices was issued today by Mrs. Olive Hewitt, N.Y.A. supervisor for Lawrence county.

In extending this invitation to the public to view and appraise the work of the N.Y.A., Mrs. Hewitt said that the open house demonstration had a two-fold purpose. "First," she said, "we want the public to see how N.Y.A. is helping youth and our community and secondly we should like to impress upon the people the need for constant community cooperation in helping youth meet and overcome their problems."

Coincident with this invitation Mrs. Hewitt also announced that the local N.Y.A. office at 226 Pearson street will welcome visitors between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. and that the following projects would be in operation:

Gaston Park—7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Rose Bowl—7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Clenmore School—8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Report U. S. Fleet Heading East From Hawaiian Maneuvers

Fleet Completes Annual Drills

Report Ships May Be Headed For Pacific Coast Or Panama Canal

NO ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF DESTINATION

HONOLULU, June 25—In a move shrouded with secrecy, the United States fleet was reported speeding eastward from Hawaii today.

Navy officials refused to either confirm or deny the rumor, one high official stating:

"We are not confirming the report; neither are we denying that it might be true."

Maneuvers Ended

The fighting craft ended their annual maneuvers in Hawaiian waters last May and yesterday civilian observers said they saw a long string of warships leave the Lahaina roads, off Lahaina Island of Maui, and round Diamond Head, the customary route for vessels bound for the mainland.

No information was forthcoming from Pearl Harbor, the huge naval base adjacent to Honolulu on the island of Oahu, but the rumor persisted that the ships were bound either for their home ports on the Pacific coast or for the Panama canal.

Indicate Long Voyage

The naval authority who refused to discuss the reported movement added that orders for "whatever is taking place, if anything" did not clear through Hawaiian naval district headquarters, the customary channel, the inference being that if the fleet is on the move, it is acting on orders from Washington.

In the long column of vessels were seen battleships, aircraft carriers and hospital ship, the latter indicating a long voyage. Hospital ships ordinarily are not taken out on short exercises.

C. D. Of A. Court Installs Officers

Local Court To Participate In Catholic Field Day, Sunday Afternoon At Ewing Park

Officers were installed Monday evening, when members of the Catholic Daughters of America, Court Teresa Irene No. 231, gathered in the K. of C. Home, North Jefferson street.

Mrs. Della K. Crawford, district deputy from Midland was the installing officer and she was assisted by Mrs. Teresa Dillon, grand regent of Court Midland.

Mrs. Marie J. Metz, grand regent of the local court introduced the Court's chaplain, The Rev. Fr. Peter M. Schirra, who congratulated the new officers, and hoped that the new year would be a better one for the court.

Remarks were also made by Mrs. Della K. Crawford and Mrs. Teresa Dillon, Mrs. Evelyn Woods, chairman of the trustees, and Mrs. Marie J. Metz, grand regent. The special music during the installation services was provided by Miss Clare Duff.

On Sunday, June 30, the local junior court will join with the Midland, Butler and Ellwood City Junior courts, to participate in a grand Catholic Field Day, to be held at Ewing park, at 2 o'clock. Miss Rose Uhl, chairman of the junior court, will have charge of the local junior courts, and demonstrations and drills will be featured on this occasion.

In behalf of the court, the grand regent, Mrs. Metz, presented the installing officers, Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Dillon with lovely gifts.

Following the business, a buffet lunch was served by the social committee, with Mrs. Anne Mulcahy in charge. Rev. Fr. Peter M. Schirra was a special guest.

July 8, is the date chosen for the next regular meeting.

Ministers' Wives Breakfast Monday

Ministers And Families Guests; Conduct Business Meetings At Breakfast

Owing to the weather, the breakfast given by the Minister's Wives club Monday morning was held in the First Presbyterian church, instead of Cascade Park. Ministers and their families were special guests for the occasion.

Rev. Thomas B. Shearer gave the invocation after which the well-prepared breakfast was served by a committee headed by Mrs. John J. McIlvaine. Her aides were Miss Mary Alice White, Mrs. J. Calvin Rose and Mrs. A. P. Shaffer.

During the course of the morning, the ministers conducted a short business meeting when prayer was offered by Rev. Rees T. Williams. A motion was passed renewing the association's membership in the Greater New Castle Association and Rev. N. A. White introduced Rev. Norman P. Spear, new pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church. An invitation was extended to the ministers by the Reformed church to attend the reception in honor of Rev. Spear on Wednesday evening, June 26, and Rev. Thomas B. Shearer was elected to speak for the association.

The matter of a farewell honoring Rev. Chester T. R. Yeates, vice president of the association, was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of Revs. A. M. Stump, J. C. Rose and Rees T. Williams. This committee is to confer with a similar committee from the Ministers' Wives club. Mrs. Shearer had charge of the wives' meeting when they decided to make the farewell a joint affair. By vote of the members, this will be the policy in the matter of future farewells.

Mrs. D. L. Ferguson offered her home for the event and Mrs. J. J. McIlvaine and Mrs. G. S. Bennett were appointed to assist her and meet with the ministers' committee.

Announcement was made by Rev. W. V. McLean that any minister desiring a guest minister for Sunday, September 15, should confer with him. He also extended an invitation to the ministers to attend the sessions of the Erie Annual Conference to be held in the First Methodist church during the second week of September.

The meeting closed with the extension of a vote of thanks to the breakfast committee by the joint action of ministers and wives.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

FIRST CAMP DAY

Bugs, Rebeccas and Skips were explained the first true day at Camp East Brook, on Monday. At 12:30 o'clock 40 girls began the exciting journey towards two weeks of fun. Many were troopers, having been at camp before, but some 20 were new hands at camp.

At 3 o'clock, parents having been dispensed with, Miss Louise Dugan took the girls for their first dip in the pool and Miss Ruth Petterson entertained with games and stories on the lawn. Six o'clock brought a welcome dinner bell and at 7 o'clock Miss Dorothy Stewart camp director assembled the group in the dining hall for a discussion. During that time, the girls decided to name each cabin after various birds and ordained that if any girl talked or got out of bed during rest hour, she must forfeit that afternoon's free swimming period.

Instead of each counsellor being introduced, the girls attempted to guess who they were. Games were then enjoyed and there was a pajama parade to the dining hall for milk and crackers. After Miss Marie Manning led a song period around the fireplace, the brush brigade, camp expression for tooth brushing time, was formed to end the first day at camp.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, June 25—If Lieutenant Colonel Philip Mathews WPA administrator in Pennsylvania gets "kicked upstairs" to a higher post in the nation's defense program, it won't be because of U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey's influence....there have been unconfirmed reports that Mathews and the senator from Pennsylvania do not see eye to eye on patronage....Mathews, trained in the army tradition, has pursued a policy of "no politics on WPA."

Mathews was not appointed with the sanction of Senator Guffey and if he is moved from his present position it will be because his superiors at Washington feel his executive talents are needed elsewhere....Mathews is a West Point classmate of Col. F. C. Harrington, National WPA administrator....It is said of Mathews that he is so well acquainted with the U. S. Army that he can call the 2,000 highest officers by their first names.

Some months ago Mathews was asked by former President Herbert Hoover to head American relief in Poland....Mathews reputedly told Hoover: "Wait a while. Before long you'll have to organize a relief body for all of Europe"....Reports are that Mathews may receive a high relief post or one with the National defense program.

The risignation of Frank Harris, Allegheny county Republican chairman, from his county's patronage committee is a clear sign that the patronage troubles of the James administration have not been cleared up....Harris, a former Pinchot adherent, became disgruntled over the scarcity of jobs obtained from the James regime....more repercussions may be expected later.

The Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic national convention will contain two Guffeys as delegates at large....Two two are U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey, and his sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller ....Mrs. Miller was an alternate at large until selected as the substitute for the late Thomas A. Logue of Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania legislative correspondents association oldest organization of state capitol reporters in the Nation, will move into its new headquarters soon at the capitol....The old newsroom, which has seen service for almost two decades, has been completely renovated and its space tripled....Prominent guests are expected to attend the housewarming which will follow.

Public Utility Commissioner Frank Morgal, who obtained his $10,000 a year post the hard way (working his way up from messenger) became acting commission chairman during the absence of the two Republican members at the Republican National convention....Leroy Greene, assistant secretary to the governor, served as liaision man between the governor's office at the state capitol and his temporary residence in Philadelphia during the Republican convention.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1940 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The only smiling likeness of Adolf Hitler we recall seeing was a news picture of the German dictator being greeted by one of the Hohenzollern princes, before the Nazis seized power. It was a fawning, fatuous smile, to be sure, the kind of smile that is rendered by the socially inferior to their betters, and, naturally, it has not been visible since. It has been transferred to the faces of der Fuehrer's yes-men.

Hitler frowns. Dictators and stubborn dogmatists are never humorous. They couldn't possibly be. Humor, unlike an electric current, never flows from a high to a low potential. It never flashes between master and man. The master is no more a humorist than he is a hero to his butler. If the master makes a joke and the butler laughs, it will be a condescending gag and a dutiful laugh. Liberty, equality and fraternity, and sometimes a brass rail, are essential to the free play of humor. Abraham Lincoln never said that, but he exemplified it. He never would have been our greatest and most beloved democrat without his humor and his love of humor.

G. Ward Price, British author of "I Know These Dictators", published in this country two years ago, would perhaps disagree about dictators having no sense of humor. In his book he is moved to ecstatic fervor as he describes Adolf Hitler's exquisite, subtle, gracious humor. Mr. Price, tall, monocled, graceful British aristocrat, is a well - known war correspondent, who, forming a close social and professional acquaintance with Hitler and Mussolini, during the years of their rise to power and thereafter, found them singularly charming and likeable.

As he relates in the above book, he and his employer, Lord Beaverbrook, the great British newspaper magnate, were among Hitler's guests at his first big party after he gained power in 1933. Lord Beaverbrook returned to campaign for fascism, through his great chain of newspapers, which reached 80 per cent of the newspaper readers of England. Mr. Price wrote his book.

In full justice to Mr. Price, it should be noted that he gives an authentic sample of Herr Hitler's quick, flashing, spontaneous humor. He describes the great state dinners the Fuehrer gave when he became Germany's supreme overlord, the easy grace and punctilio of these splendid banquets, but, above all, Herr Hitler's flashing wit.

Mr. Price records, for history, one of the host's facile jokes which, he said, always convulses the guests with laughter. He has a very fat butler, usually hovering near his master's chair. Herr Hitler waits an opportune moment, when he has the full attention of the dinner company, and then turns to his butler and says, "Koennenberg, tell us how many chins you have." We are led to believe that Hitler thought that one up himself. That is the only sample Mr. Price gives us. But he seems to think it is enough to garland Herr Hitler as a great and lovable humorist.

But the monocled Mr. Price, writing his "Apologia Fascisma", is not England, and I think it is well to take note of that at this tragic hour. The key to the understanding of the real British democracy lies somewhere in the distinction between what Mr. Price and Joe Bobblesworth of Upper Tooting, respectively, think is funny. Here is a more heartening story, which, in my opinion, encourages belief and hope that England will pull through.

Sir Oswald Mosely, an even more overwrought Hitler fan than Mr. Price, and also an aristocrat, went over to Germany to study Hitler and master his technique in getting his fellow citizens roped and hogtied. He returned to England, built his Fascist Union, a shirt outfit, and staged a great public meeting in the Berlin Sportspalast manner. There was an audience of many thousands in the great, darkened hall, with a single spotlight stabbing the stage.

There was the low throb of drums, a quickening tempo, suspense and a magnificent dramatic climax as little Oswald was caught by the sweep of the spotlight, as he entered lower left. He wore his shirt, his swastika, breeks and military boots. He advanced downstage with the Hitler stride. And then, at the climactic moment he held up his hand in the Hitler salute.

There was a moment of breathless silence. And then, far, far back in the deep shadows, there was a quiet, academic voice, saying, "Yes, Oswald, you may leave the room."

Somehow, one believes the real England lives in spite of the stupid subversionists who have opened her gates to the enemy.

Feller Defeats New York Yanks

Score Is 7 To 1 In Night Game At Cleveland, Browns Upset Macks 9 To 4

By ED KIELY
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 25—Give Manager Fred Haney a couple of pitchers and a couple of years and the St. Louis Browns might accomplish what they have been striving to do these past 38 years—win an American League pennant.

Never in the league's history have the Browns finished in first place. Twice they came close, finishing second. But the majority of times they ended the campaign, as they did last season, in the second division.

Feller Beats Yanks

Today Haney, who succeeded Gabby Street as manager in 1939, has the makings of a promising club. His youngsters are powdering the ball, but his pitching staff is woefully weak.

Yesterday the Browns cemented themselves in fifth place in the junior circuit by lacing the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 4. Four home runs, two by Walt Judnich, paced the Browns 12-hit assault on two enemy pitchers.

The Cleveland Indians blasted the New York Yankees 7 to 1 in a night game. All other games in both leagues were rained out.

Maranville here Friday—One of baseball's most precious gems, the colorful Rabbit Maranville is scheduled to visit New Castle on Friday. The sensational shortstop and second sacker will come here in charge of a free baseball school, starting at 9:30 o'clock at George Washington junior high school field. . . .

One of the game's most interesting personalities, Rabbit's appearance here will, no doubt, lure Lawrence County's diamond coterie. During the day's activities, Maranville will probably show his audience some of the rudiments of the game. Old timers remember Rabbit as a member of the famous Miracle Braves of Boston in 1914. . . .

It doesn't cost a red penny to attend the one day diamond lessons. Maranville, like a number of other ex-greats of the big show, is employed by a large firm. His duties are to impart with some of the finer points of the game to the youths of the country. . . .

Statistical box—Carl Hubbell, one of baseball's greatest hurlers, will celebrate his 37th birthday Saturday. . . . Pittsburgh's first two night games each lured more than 20,000 customers. . . . Of the last 13 games played between the Cards and Pittsburgh at Forbes Field, the Bucs have won only three. . . .

Association dope bucket — Bob Kline, of Milwaukee, is the leading pegger in the American Association. He has won five triumphs against no setbacks. . . . Johnny Lindell, of Kansas City, has snagged nine wins and has lost two decisions. . . . Louisville still ranks as the best defensive team with a .979 mark. . . .

Indianapolis, which dropped 20 out of 24 games, has committed the most miscues in the loop—81. . . . Minneapolis, one of the hardest hitting teams in baseball, has already whacked out 71 home runs. St. Paul ranks second in the circuit walloping department with 51. . . . Himsl and Lloyd Johnson, St. Paul hurlers, are credited with the most defeats—7. . . .

Odds and ends in baseball—"Diz" Dean has suffered his initial defeat in the Texas League. He recently dropped an 8-2 decision to Dallas. "Diz" proved that he's still tops as a drawing card, luring 5,361 customers. . . . Spud Chandler, Yankee pitcher, hasn't hurled a complete game since May 27. . . . Columbus, of the A. A., has purchased Jim Winford, who won 24 and lost 17 as a Columbus pegger back in 1933 and 1935. . . .

Fritzie Sivic, welterweight of Pittsburgh, made another Stop in his pursuit of Henry Armstrong's crown last night in Pittsburgh when he used a left to flatten Johnny Rinaldi of New York in 24 seconds. The punch traveled no more than six inches and the retired undefeated lightweight champion, Benny Leonard, tolled the 10 seconds off. It was sweet revenge for Fritzie, Rinaldi having knocked out his brother, Eddie Zivic, last year in New York. Not long ago Fritzie flattened Ossie Harris in a few chapters.

Indies To Play West Pittsburg

League Leaders May Find "Gas House" Team Too Tough For Them Tonight

The feature attraction in the City Baseball league tonight will be the Lawrence Indies, league leaders tangling with the strong West Pittsburg "Gas House" team at the popular West Pittsburg field. The game will start at 6 o'clock and will no doubt draw the largest crowd of the year to West Pittsburg.

The Danny DeGenova managed team still has a mathematical chance to win the first-half pennant, and a win tonight for the 'Gas Housers' will put them in good stead. Manager DeGenova said today that he would probably pitch Brakyovich, with Soho or Tonsetic in reserve. The Indies will use either Frigione or Wilk.

Moose Vs Elders

The St. Josephs will go to the Clifton Flats field to oppose the Slovaks. The West Side Tigers play the Red Sox team at the George Washington High field.

The second-place Eiders team will play the Moose Club at the Lockley field diamond. Manager Joe O'Leary will have Dolly Hartman or Dory Gunnett ready for mound duty. The Moose will more than likely use Campbell. The up and coming Ryantown team will go to the Croton field to oppose the Croton A. C. team.

Louis Gives Max Baer Few Tips

Heavyweight Champion Would Like To See Maxie Baer Flatten Galento

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 25.—Here's a tip straight from the feed box:—Max Baer will knock out Tony Galento in Jersey City a week from tomorrow night.

Who says so? Joe Louis. And Joe should know what both those birds can do for he's had the pleasure of flattening both of them.

Not only that, but Joe whispered to the writer that he has bet a few course green notes that Max will stop the rolling beer barrel in less than 10 heats.

Moreover, just to make his "sure thing" doubly sure, Joe took the trouble to visit Max's camp to tell the great actor how to do it.

Louis Likes Baer

Joe likes Max almost as much as he dislikes Tony and he'll get just as much pleasure watching Max flatten Tony as if he were doing it himself.

"Don't try to stiffen him in the first round," Joe cautioned Max who, for once in his life, listened with serious attention. "That fat boy's too strong to go out in a hurry.

"Just stab him like this for a few rounds and cut him up and whenever you see an opening shoot a rght cross. Make sure you tie him up in the clinches like this (and Joe demonstrated) and watch out for his head. If you ain't careful he's liable to butt your head off your shoulders.

"If you do just like I say you're sure to stop him."

Galento Facing Medical Checkup

Medicos Want To See What Condition Galento Is In, Faces Max Baer Next Tuesday

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 25.—Just to make sure that he hasn't burnt out a bearing or blown a gasket since he last submitted to an inspection, Two-Ton Tarzan Galento, esq., will be given a thorough examination late today by Dr. Louis H. Dodson, of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission. This will be in the nature of one of the last precautionary measures to be taken before Galento is permitted to offer his beer-bloated carcas as a target for Max Baer's punches in the Jersey City baseball park a week from tonight.

Galento probably has been examined more than any heavyweight that ever lived. The attack of pneumonia he suffered some time back has caused him to be perpetually regarded as a candidate for the morgue if he allows himself to be unduly exerted, but he still goes on winning—from everybody except heavyweight champion Joe Louis. And he remains healthy even after fighting Louis. In fact—and you can check his record on this—Galento has been a better fighter since he finished that prolonged encampment under an oxygen tent than he ever was before.

Galento Can Punch

He probably isn't human, for he looks the part of nothing more prepossessing than a paunchy, cigar-smoking, lager-guzzling old gent who has failed in 30-odd years to learn any manners. He hasn't learned to fight much either, but he can hit and everybody is wondering right now whether he will be able to make Baer quit before they have gone the 15.

The betting odds are 7 to 5 on Galento and even money that the bout won't go the limit, as it very probably won't. They both hit too hard and Galento gets too rough in there if he is permitted to stick around for these two to get by 45 minutes of fighting without somebody being knocked out or cut into a techincal knockout.

CHURCH LEAGUE PARTY

The New Castle church golfers will play at the Castle Hills course Thursday night of this week instead of at the New Castle Field club, it was announced by Thomas H. "Tommy" Hitchcock, president of the league. The reason for the change is due to the big mid-season party by the members at the Castle Hills clubhouse. The event will be in the nature of a picnic lunch with speeches and prizes awarded.

The picnic will follow the playing of the following matches: Trinity vs. First Christians, First Presbyterians vs. Temple Israel, Highland vs. St. Mary's, Mahoning vs. First Methodists, and the First U. P. team draws a bye by being scheduled with the St. Joseph's team, and automatically get six points.

Members of the league planning on staying for the picnic lunch and general good-time following the matches can secure tickets for 25 cents from their captains.

The Church League will play at the Field Club course next Tuesday it was announced, owing to the Fourth of July falling on next Thursday, the regular league night.

LEAGUE PLAYS TONIGHT

This week marks the start of the twice-weekly play in the Sylvan Heights league race, which will continue during the next five weeks, so that the league can finish up before darkness puts a halt to evening play.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

It has been some time since a good idea for a sandwich has been published in this column . . . the only reason we can give for this, the ideas have been too far apart and not because some of the young single bucks around town think it a silly thing to do . . . some day they might if they are lucky settle down to real honest to goodness living . . . then they will realize the value of enjoying good food . . . Today we have an idea for a sandwich that might just hit the spot for some and others will probably turn up their nose and look the other way . . . but try it before you pass judgment . . . It's called Roquefort Cheese and Garlic Sandwich . . . "Cream one half cup butter, add one-fourth pound ripe Roquefort cheese, mix until smooth. Season with one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half clove garlic (finely chooped or mashed) and salt to taste. Moisten with a little cream to make right consistency to spread. Put between very thin slices of brown bread, or whole wheat or rye bread." Good luck my friends.

And now we have another address for a dog . . . Reits home, Mahoningtown, R. D. No. 7. Phone 2111-R . . . Spitz Dog, 1½ years old, male. Very playful. Nice for pet.

The playgrounds sure get put to use when the weather is right . . . and the swimming is good too if you don't mind a little chilly water . . . a good many folks are swimming in the Slippery Rock creek . . . we hope they are careful.

Some of the brethern are boasting about their gardens . . . how things are progressing . . . the fellow who can display sweet peas at this date is in our opinion some sort of a gardner. There are a few around town who can do just that, according to a report, to date we haven't seen any of the blooms.

It seems as each day comes and goes . . . so do the golfers. Some are hot today and then are off tomorrow . . . some talk a good game and play poorly, while others just play for fun and talk for fun . . . there is nothing more disgusting than to find a poor sport on the golf course . . . they are soon spotted by fellow players and their rating is none too high.

Market Weakens After Opening, Profit-Taking Prime Influence In Market Drop

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, June 25.—The stock market weakened on a wide front late in the forenoon today, with some leaders dropping 1 to 2 points.

Trading was quiet at the opening but volume picked up as the market began to slide in the second hour.

Profit-taking on the fair-sized rally of yesterday was the prime influence.

Steel shares were led downward by U. S. Steel, which tumbled 2 points before meeting support. Bethlehem's decline was equally large, while National, Republic and Youngstown Sheet & Tube each dropped a point or more.

Coppers generally, along with oils, rubbers, rails, rail equipments and motors, were well under last night's closing quotations.

Commodities displayed easier tendencies in sympathy with the slide in stocks. Grains eased fractions, while cotton slipped a few points. Bonds were barely changed.

Pictured above is the one-time transatlantic luxury liner, Carinthia, which has been torpedoed and sunk by a German U-boat, according to a British admiralty announcement. Site of the sinking was not revealed. The admiralty announced that all but two officers and two seamen of the Carinthia, which since the war broke out had been converted into an armed merchant cruiser, were saved.

Convention Sidelights As Seen By News' Man

By BART RICHARDS
(News Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 25.—Its rather disturbing to say the least to be walking down near the corner of Broad and Arch Streets of stately old Philadelphia and hear your name bellowed out. After all Philadelphia is 350 or 400 miles away from New Castle.

The lad bellowing the name was Lew Preston, a retired tin worker of New Castle who stopped over in Philadelphia from Florida, on his way to New Castle. Mr. Preston isn't interested in who is nominated but he thought he woud stop over to see the show. And in the few minutes he talked he mentioned the fact that he had been studying voice all winter in Florida. He didn't give out any samples.

Coming down in the train one of the gentlemen in the smoking compartment was Dewitt Emery, president of the National Small Business Men's Association. This is the organization that was called in to Washington to hear what the government thought of small business men and the small B. M. kicked over the traces and told the government what it thought of the way things are going in Washington.

Mr. Emery is a Lawrence County man once removed. He is a business man of Akron, O., but his father was reared in Plaingrove township which probably accounts for the independence of his son. Mr. Emery is the uncle of Gomer Emery of Adams street of New Castle.

One of the busiest men in Philadelphia this week is Captain Roger W. Rowland of New Castle. Aside from being Secretary of Property and Supplies in Governor James' cabinet, Cap is the manager of the campaign of Gov. Arthur H. James for the presidential nomination by the Republicans.

He has a hideaway in a hotel where he sleeps, when he does, but the minute he walks into the Benjamin Franklin hotel where the Pennsylvania delegation is quartered, he is wanted by a dozen people at once.

Cap believes Governor James has a chance to win the nomination. "We're not making extravagant promises" said he, but look out for James after three or four ballots. We believe Dewey and Taft will not get together, the Willkie forces will have to go some place and the Vandenburg boom is fading. Maybe we won't win, but don't sell Governor James short."

By Tuesday there will be a lot of New Castle people in for the convention. Among the ones who are said to be sure of attendance are Judge Thomas W. Dickey, State Committeeman Ivor V. Davis, Register and Recorder Orville Potter, Prothonotary John A. Edgar, Thomas C. Edmunds, Daniel Treloar, Deputy Attorney General Orville Brown and a host of others.

The wire service headquarters are interesting spots at this convention. One of the services that has made elaborate arrangements to handle the convention is the International News Service, which serves The News. Headed by Barry Faris, the INS has a host of nationally known writers here and the headquarters in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel is broken out with name writers.

Heading the feature writers is Damon Runyan that whimsical writer of fiction whose jargon has become a part of our national expression. Damon is a little fellow in size, modest in demeanor and doesn't look at all like the Broadway he writes so entrancingly about.

Dolan, Hutchinson, Lockett, Bancroft, these and a dozen more are here to give you the spot happenings of this quadrennial battle for the Republican nomination for president. As to the vice president nomination. Nobody has a candidate and nobody seems to care who gets it. By Friday night or Saturday after the tumult and the shouting are over most any citizen over thirty-five years of age and within hailing distance of the convention had better keep his eyes open or he may find himself a candidate.

The convention hall is a blaze of color. Banners with the names of the states upon them, state seals around the arena and high tiers of seats where the visitors will sit. High up at the rear end of the hall, almost touching the roof is the band stand.

The credentials for newspaper men are the nicest things put out in any national convention for years. Press passes are in leather cases while the badge is something stout. An eagle with spread wings tops the word "Press," and under it the Liberty Bell. To this is connected a piece of blue ribbon and under the ribbon another metallic badge depicting Ben Franklin getting electricity from a kite string.

In addition there is a metallic courtesy card which looks like gold but isn't. On this is etched "The courtesy of the City of Philadelphia is extended to . . . . . attending the Republican National Convention."

The Republicans even have the weather man rooting for them here. Monday morning was sultry, a regular "Philadelphia Pepper Pot.' In the huge convention hall under the kleig lights and the high temperature, collars wilted and complexions cascaded down the faces of the gals.

An hour after recess a terrific rainstorm swept the city, lowered the temperature, and cleaned out the air. The weather man was getting ready for the Liberty Bell service at five o'clock.

Among the strollers near the Bellevue Straatford early Monday were Judge Thomas W. Dickey and Harold C. Heck. This time they have seats nearer the left field bleachers.

Back in 1924, when Coolidge was nominated at Cleveland, they had seats out some where near Put-in-Bay. They wanted to get close enough to see what the speakers looked like, and we got them into the press box. That was the day that Judge Dickey represented the East Brook Morning Bugle and Heck represented the Plaingrove Clarion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. L. Roberts of New Castle were among the early arrivals at Pennsylvania headquarters Monday morning. Mrs. Roberts was in on the caucus of Pennsylvania delegates. Don't know how she got by the guard on the door for the caucus was for delegates, alternates and newspaper men.

Like all national conventions this one has attracted the cream of the journalistic field in the United States. The majority of them remember New Castle for the Landon party four years ago and among the top-flight writers, who had a good time then and still remembers it is Henry L. Mencken, the sage of Baltimore. Mencken recalled his trip to West Middlesex when he interviewed the choir in the little church up there on the Sunday morning Alfred M. Landon went to church.

The busiest newspaper man in Philadelphia is Bill Donaldson, superintendent of the press gallery in the House of Representatives in Washington. Bill's job at all national gatherings is to assign working press representatives places and it's a twenty four hour job.

He had charge of the press reservations at the Landon opening at West Middlesex, and spent a week in the Castleton Hotel. He asked to be remembered to Leslie Brindle who aided him in a number of ways. Caroline Hannon who was his secretary for the week and Bob Weingartner who took him to Chautauqua, N. Y. to arrange for the meeting there.

There's always a Forgotten Man in every convention. In this one it is former U. S. Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana. Back in 1934 at the Cleveland convention Watson was one of the most sought after men present. He was one of the inner circle, he knew what was going on, he was one of the elder statesmen. At this convention he is just an old man of 76 enjoying in retrospect the glories that once were his, just visiting around. He was defeated in 1932 by the New Deal and probably will never be a public figure again.

Chairman Hamilton has a lot of gavels. The first one he used was a glass gavel made by some vocational students of Philadelphia. It didn't make enough noise and he traded it for one that looks like a sixteen pound sledge. You probably heard the bang of it over the radio.

Secretary of Welfare E. Arthur Sweeny of Greensburg is a newspaper man. As a cabinet officer of Pennsylvania he probably could have had a seat on the state with the big shots. Instead he has his reservation in the press box as a working press representative. The word box hardly covers it. The press section is in four sections with about 450 seats. The chap next to us is representing the newspaper of Worcester, Mass.
